

Spotlight on Sustainability

This spring, we are presenting two performances that highlight and explore the big environmental and social issues of our time.

Treelogy (March 2) was created as a response to our devastating wildfires and pays tribute to the resilience of the iconic trees of California, the coastal redwood, giant sequoia, and Joshua tree.

Clear Creek Creative's "Ezell: Ballad of a Land Man"

(April 27, 28, & 29) is a theatrical piece that explores and inspires the possibility of living in harmony with nature and with one another. The performance takes place outside of our venue at the Fairfield Osborn Preserve.

As we look to bring awareness to the environmental challenges of our world, we also want to highlight the many local businesses we partner with that are leading the way in sustainability and making the world a better place right here in Sonoma County!

Everyone's favorite dairy brand, Clover Sonoma, was the first dairy in the U.S. to switch to a 100% plant based, renewable carton. They are also the first milk brand in the U.S. to launch a post-consumer recycled gallon milk jug, made with 30% recycled household plastic! Their sustainability practices reach beyond their packaging to their farming practices and more. Read more about how Clover is leading the way in a commitment to planet-friendly practices and packaging: cloversonoma.com/our-promise/sustainability/

Cartograph Wines are stewards of the land. They seek to create a sustainable company that creates the best wine they can in an environment that inspires joy and social and environmental responsibility. Their wine comes from the land and that is why they are committed to helping to protect it by giving 1% of their gross revenues to non-profits whose work directly impacts the environment. Cartograph Wines does not simply measure success as profit but rather treats their social and environmental impact as a primary measure of their success. Learn more about their giveback program at cartographwines.com/About/Giving-Back

Sustainability is nothing new for local grocer Oliver's Market. Before sustainability was common practice, Oliver's was walking the talk and lowering the carbon footprint of their supply chain by supporting local farmers and local artisans. They are also the first grocer in Sonoma County to become certified as a Green Business. With goals of working towards zero waste, renewable energy, and water efficiency, they are leading the way in sustainable practices and are committed to being a social purpose corporation. Learn more about their impact at oliversmarket.com/sustainability/

From their beginnings in farming to their now widely successful vineyards, sustainability has always been a priority for Balletto Vineyards. Like an extension of the family, their vineyards are treated with extreme care, which is why incorporating sustainable practices like cover crop planting, recycled water use, composting, and soil moisture monitoring is a no-brainer. Beyond their vineyards, Balletto uses solar power to help power their business, they house employees, and they prioritize giving back to their community. Balletto is proud to be part of a county that is committed to becoming the first 100% sustainable wine region in the nation. Learn more about their sustainable practices at ballettovineyards.com/sustainability

Sonoma-Cutrer has always sought harmony with their environment and perfection in every step of the winemaking process. Sustainability is not something they practice because they have to but because they love it. From 100% treated wastewater to a focus on waste reduction in their production, they continue to be a leader in this initiative and prioritize protecting the environment in everything they do. Learn more at sonomacutrer.com/winemaking/sonoma-cuttrers-sustainability-story/

photo courtesy of Sonoma-Cutrer Vineyards

Willow Creek Wealth Management is a locally owned and community-oriented firm committed to providing opportunities to invest with your personal values in mind. The Willow Creek Team is equipped with multiple experts on sustainable investing who are excited to help you make an impactful shift in the way your money is invested. Be a part of a worldwide movement by investing in the growth and prosperity of our future and find peace of mind knowing that you have a seat at the table when it comes to our world's climate and environmental challenges. Learn more about how Willow Creek can help you be a catalyst for change at willowcreekwealth.com.

Sustainability at Recology can be found at the intersection of their social and environmental values - where their efforts to support the communities' goals to maximize resource recovery are coupled with strategic initiatives to minimize the environmental impact of their operations. As a company, they are committed to reducing the environmental impact of operations, supporting their diverse employee-owners, and partnering with local communities to achieve shared goals. Learn more about how Recology prioritizes sustainability at sustainability.recology.com/

As a socially conscious organization, Redwood Credit Union is committed to investing in green technology and sustainable practices. With solar loans and electric vehicle discounts, RCU helps its communities be more energy-efficient, reduce their carbon footprint, and save money. To learn more about RCU's earth-friendly practices, visit redwoodcu.org/about/sustainability.